

Doctorate in Philosophy

The Ph.D. in Philosophy is intended for those who aspire to careers in teaching and research in philosophy at the college and university level. Degree requirements can be adjusted in individual cases to permit the student to work in related fields.

The program encourages well-thought-out interdisciplinary work for its own sake and for the professional opportunities it may provide.

Requirements: A minimum of 60 graduate credits are required for the degree. Up to 15 of these credits may, with the adviser's approval, be taken in related fields. For students admitted to the program with a master's degree in philosophy, a minimum of 30 credits are required, of which 6 credits may be in related fields.
